Behold, I send
My Messenger,
And he will

One Down, One to Go!

Earlier this month Ok Ao Bible School completed its first year of instruction! Ten students have stuck it out this far and we pray that each one will persevere.

One of our classes this term in Bible School focuses on how to study the Bible. We did one study together on trouble in the Christian's life and the students were surprised to find that the

instead of turning to a magic man when someone is sick. Strong enough to not be afraid when people use magic to try and hurt them. The problem is that to know something is true and to Hammers Everywhere!

I think every hammer in the area has been swinging around here this last week. The Bible School dorm may be ready for occupation in just a few more weeks and I have finally had a chance to work on a shed for the tractor. Next on the list is a small workshop under the house. These projects have been planned for more than two years but did not start due to lack of funds. Now, thanks to some incredibly generous gifts, they are in progress.

Please praise God with us for these gifts and pray that God will keep these projects moving right along.

Prayer Briefs:

Mail, what's that?

After a couple of months with "regular" service our mailbag suddenly got very light again. Many parts and supplies are only available from outside the country so mail is very important.

A bug here and a bug there . . .

No, we didn't have any Y2K troubles but several viruses - the organic kind-have made the rounds in the community... and our family.

Homeschooling going well:

No Daniel did not suddenly fall in love with learning but he accepts it and even enjoys some of it. Stefanie is buzzing right along and Alicia wants in on it, too.
