Prayer Force News

VOLUME XIII NUMBER 2

APRIL/MAY 2009

Have you ever tried to sing at the funeral of someone you were close to? My brother, a close friend of ours and I sang I Can Only Imagine and I did fade out a couple times. People enjoyed it and it was just a small part of a very fitting memorial service for my dad.

The last four weeks have been a blur: the call from my mom telling me about Dad, scrambling to get tickets, 57 hours in transit to the US, the funeral, helping my mom sort through things, 63 hours in transit on the way back and finally trying to jump right back into teaching three weeks after classes began! However, each step of the way we saw God responding to your prayers . . . thanks so much!

Please Pray:

- † Thank you so much for your prayers! You are signed up as a Prayer Partner until March 31 of 2010 and we want to thank you so much. In December we will ask you to renew your commitment but until then you are all set!
- † Thanks so much for your prayers for Michelle's ankle. While in the States she found out that all the pain she's had can be easily fixed by an orthopedic surgeon and a manageable recovery period. We are close to a hospital that has a regular flow of visiting doctors. Pray that we'll be able to find someone to do the surgery.
- † Once again I am extremely busy with classes. Jumping in three weeks after the eight-week term started meant there were things waiting on me for grading. Pray that I'll be able to catch up and then get started preparing for my classes next term!
- † When Michelle agreed to take over book-ordering for the college little did she know what she was in for. The college is currently upgrading the library for accreditation and eventually a Master's degree program. She has already ordered close to 200 titles and is working on about 75 more. She generally has to look up each one individually on the internet for prices and our internet connection is doing well if it is going at 1/2 the speed of U.S. dial-up! This is in addition to making a home in the jungle and home schooling Alicia. Pray that she will learn to manage all of this with minimal stress!
- † Daniel and Stefanie are doing well at school. We miss them but they love all the activities and friends they have there. They are also in an environment geared towards learning. Pray that they will continue to grow "in favor with God [spiritually] and man [character and academics]."

Pray for the finances of the college. A couple months ago we were out of operating capital but now things are looking up!

We have been amazed to see how much God has done through prayer the last few months. Thanks for being a part of that!

Servants together through prayer,

Kent & Michelle Mundhenk
